PAN AFRICAN HERITAGE WORLD PROJECT

The African Union Commission welcomes and supports the initiative to establish a Pan-African Heritage Museum within the Pan African Heritage World project to be located, appropriately, in Ghana, a country which has always been associated with Pan-Africanism since independence in March 1957.

As a Commission, we note with satisfaction the major themes underlining this cherished project. They are fundamental to the understanding and appreciation for a continental union of African states, to include our Diaspora.

The assembly of well-renowned academics from various corners of the world to authenticate the African narrative assures us of a solid foundation upon which to build the Africa we want.

The AU Commission stands ready to mobilize all relevant agencies, departments and constituents with Africa and the Diaspora to support this historic endeavor.

We therefore endorse the Pan-African Heritage World Project, without hesitation, and we are proud to recommend it to all individuals, organizations, and institutions.
